Sunday forenoon Rev. William Stevenson, of Monrovia, Cal., occupied his old pulpit at Stapp's Chapel, and delivered an excellent sermon. The audience room was well filled by the many friends of the clergyman, who gave him a warm reception. Rev. Springer spoke at night. Rev. James Miller delivered one sermon Sunday, at the forenoon hour. At the close of the service the following were received into full membership: Dr. T. B. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. George Nebinger, O. J. Spore, J. N. Fuller, Ed. Wills, Ira Olney, Mr. Gantz, May Condel, Pauline Johnson, Alva Johnson, Annie Jackson, George E. Miller, Nellie Bailey and Maude Evans.

Macon County Ahead.

Macon county beats the record for wheat growing. Oliver Gibson, who lives south of Macon, last week threshed his wheat crop, and from a field of 18 acres mounted up 300 bushels and 40 pounds— a trifle over 50 bushels per acre. What county in Illinois—or elsewhere, for that matter—can beat this? South Macon township has always been considered the banner township for wheat, and this seems to prove that the claim is well founded.

6,000 AT THE CAMP.

A Big Day at Oakland Park—Third Party and Free Trade Talk.

Manager Smith Happy—Addresses by St. John, Dr. Evans and Miss Northman.

Manager Smith takes all the responsibility for the National Prohibition camp meeting in arranging the details and defraying all expenses by the 10 cent charges for humans and horses at the gates, has caused to be happy to-day, and his smiles are anything but sickly. Sunday was a delightful summer day, and great crowds of people flocked to Oakland Park to hear the singing and speeches, quite a number going over to witness the ball game in the afternoon. Farmers with their families and well filled baskets came to the camp in vehicles and other vehicles came in on the excursion trains at all rates, Manager Smith having arranged months ago for the running of the trains. The street cars and tracks had all they could do in conveying city and country people to and from the camp meeting.

At the forenoon hour, Dr. J. G. Evans, the good-natured and deep-voiced president of Heidelberg College, Chicago, occupied the platform and preached a sermon from the 21st verse of the 23d chapter of Matthew: "Render unto Caesar the Things which are Caesar's." It was a well constructed and ably delivered dissertation on the duties of Christians in a religious and business sense, the Doctor enlarging upon the thought that all God-loving and God-fearing people should stand firm in the enforcement of all laws affecting the morals of the people. He was particularly severe on those professing Christians who make false returns to the assessor, and took occasion to mention the Farwell brothers, who had been compelled to pay a net tax on their personal property, as Evans touched upon the prohibition question and by implication at least, came out flat-footed for aggressive third party action. At the dinner hour Dr. Evans was the guest of A. G. Benton and family, of Forsyth, and also of Fred Chick and other good things with them beneath the friendly shade of a huge tree. Water was the only beverage.

At the afternoon service after the usual singing and prayer, Miss Adla Northman, of Warren, gave a brief talk on physiology, and used large charts to illustrate her points in the advocacy of prohibition.

Ex-Gov. St. John, who then introduced by Manager Smith. The speaker first alluded to the man attraction for next Sunday, Joe Hess, a ponderous German of New York, a reformed saloon keeper and gambler, and the man who knocked out Paddy Ryan in five rounds. St. John then took his text from the Bible, the 11th verse of the 5th chapter of Isaiah: "We unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink, that continue until night, till wine inflame them." He didn't make any pretensions to being a preacher, only a humble layman, but he handled the spirit of the text well in presenting his views on the duties of Christians touching their prayers and votes to the success of the prohibition movement.

Helen Gagner also addressed the audience in her plain-lighting manner.

There was another great crowd at night to hear Dr. Evans discuss prohibition from a religious standpoint.

St. John followed Evans with another prohibition talk.

Saturday afternoon and night St. John occupied the platform. In his first talk he said that high license was wholly wrong and that no government can justify the legalization of the liquor traffic, and further that the system now in vogue is a disgrace and an injury to the people. The tariff was his theme at night. No democratic orator who has ever harangued a crowd of Bourbon in a political campaign ever made such a free-trade speech as did St. John on Saturday night. He went to the furthest extreme, and said if he had the power he would let in everything free of all duty and then America would have a free market, in all countries. He seemed to assume that under such condition of affairs the poor would suddenly acquire riches and that a wonderful era of prosperity would strike this country, mortgages would be lifted off farms, taxes would be reduced and everything would be lovely. It struck some of his hearers that St. John was sounding the 1820 team for the Democrats. Those present seemed to be pleased with the address. They were quick to approve his points. It was different with the Republicans present, who were in sympathy with any possible temperance agitation. Some of them who had never seen the gentleman had heard that he was something of a fire-brand speaker, and after they had listened to his peculiar free-trade notions, they wondered why it was that Manager Smith paid such men $20 and $100 a speech. Quite a number of gentlemen in the audience left the camp in disgust and freely expressed their contempt for St. John and his democratic doctrine.

At the house of the W. C. T. U. a big business in serving meals in the tent, Joe Powell had charge of the cuisine.

The wagonmen and horsemen were on duty and the rules of the meeting kept time with the call of the ladies: "Here's your watermelon," and "Lemonade and punch, five cents a glass."

Some were admitted at the north end of the park, 10 cents for each horse.

Manager Smith announced from the platform that W. A. Cochran's horse and buggy had been stolen from the park fence Saturday afternoon, and stated that any information about the rig should be sent to Mr. Cochran.

MONDAY AT THE CAMP.

The children's meeting this forenoon was unusually interesting. After regular exercises conducted by Miss Northman, short talks were made by J. A. Van Fleet, of Springfield, and ex-Gov. St. John. Miss Mary Cowan, editor of "The Y" in Illinois, led the exercises, and a "Bible Training School."

Miss Northman conducted the devotional exercises.

What is the "Y?" was answered by Miss Barbara Bopple, by explaining that it is simply an organization of the young women to carry on the work of the W. C. T. U., the organization now numbering over 21,000. Mr. Givier followed with a short talk. Mrs. Sanford, president of the W. C. T. U. of this district, spoke briefly, mentioning the organization of one or two new districts, and said there are 16 "Y" Unions in this district.

Prof. Bopple, of Minnesota, discussed the literary work of the "Y's." Mr. Wm.

Atkinson, of Cerro Gordo, told what he had seen in a distant land.

There will be a model meeting of the "Y's" this afternoon, addressed by Miss Cowan and others. To-night there will be an elocutionary contest for a silver medal.

Among the camp ground arrivals are Miss Mary Cowan and Mrs. Sanford, of Bloomington, Miss Barbara Bopple, of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. Givier, of Emory, and Miss Bopple, of Cerro Gordo.

The Sturgeon Case.

This forenoon the case of the People vs. Samuel Sturgeon, charged with assaulting William Joyce with a spade, came up before Justice Curtis, and was taken to Justice Foster on a change of venue. In that court State's Attorney Mills suggested that the charge be changed to assault to kill or assault to murder, and to accommodate the witness, H. Richmond, foreman of the P. D. & L. fence crew was put on the stand to tell what he knew about the fight. He said he had left Sturgeon and Joyce together to dig up or break off some fence posts, and that the two men got to quarreling. He was some distance away and did not hear the words spoken but saw Sturgeon strike Joyce with the spade. Thomas Lee appeared for the defense. The trial of the case will be resumed this evening or tomorrow morning.

Not Welcome.

We are requested to state that the good people whose curiosity to view the beauties of the interior of the new Grand Opera House is so great that they cannot stay out of the building, are notified that from this date the doors will be closed against everybody until the opening nights, September 9 and 10. The painters and varnishers are now at work and most of the woodwork is in the finishing state, and the visitors are consequently a great annoyance. Visitors are not welcome.

Claim Day.

This is the first day of probate business in the county court for the August term. Claims were filed as follows this morning:

G. J. Danzeisen & Son, $13.35, against the estate of W. B. Barry.

J. L. Pratt, $13, against the estate of Wm. Gross.

J. G. Harvey, $18, against the estate of Franz Xavier Phenipin.

J. F. Priest, $170, W. B. McConnell, $15.61, and C. L. Lewis, $20, against same estate.

Horse and Buggy Stolen.

A horse and buggy belonging to W. A. Cochran, is missing. He lost his horse to the fence out of the park Saturday and went into the camp meeting, where he returned the rig was gone. He thinks the horse was stolen as he has heard nothing of his whereabouts. The horse is a dark bay 8 years old, 15 1/2 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds, heavy black horse, large splint on right fore leg close to knee, light mane and tail, collar marks on shoulders. The buggy is a well worn side bar. Mr. Cochran offers a reward of $25 for the thief and $25 for the property. Marshal Mason has sent out nearly 200 postal cards to surrounding towns.

A Circus.

Ed. L. Davis, representing the Wallace circus and menagerie is in the city. The show will exhibit at the park on Monday, August 25th. It is a double-ring circus and has the most beautiful horses ever seen with any show.

Mr. Jones has 19 engagements in Illinois before he goes to Indiana and Connecticut to continue his speech-making for six months.

Base Ball News.

The Y. B. & Macon and Wabash Car Department clubs failed to meet Saturday evening, as there was a dispute as to the ground where the game should be played.

DEBATE 17 MARIA 7.

Sunday afternoon at the ball park in the presence of 300 people, including a number of out-of-town ladies, the Deatur Reds defeated the Marion club in a rugged game on both sides. The change pitchers for the visitors were the lightweight but puzzling Drop Ford and Huber, while after the first inning Watson did well for the Reds. The score was:

PEOPLE WHO ACT AS INFORMERS UPON SMUGGLERS.

They Make a Good Thing Out of It. Through the Calling in Rather Comprehensible Merchants Who Put a Fly in Their Rivals' Coffee.

There are scores of men and women in this city who make a large income every year by acting as informers upon smugglers. Sometimes they take tips to European themselves. They are generally well acquainted with money, and to the majority of their acquaintances their source of income is a mystery.

For years past it has been the policy of the government, through the secretary of the treasury, to award $5 per cent. of the value received from the sale of the smuggled articles to the party who discovered the smuggler, or who gave information leading to such discovery.

It is estimated that in this manner the government pays out the sum of $100,000 a year.

In some cases the special deputy officers employed in the custom house are a percentage of the seizures which they make, and this is the principal reason for their vigilance toward incoming passengers, which has in many cases been very offensive.

The stewards and stewardesses of nearly all the big steamships are among the most active informers, and they frequently make a lot of money through it.

"They have not the slightest compunction in betraying their best friends," said a special agent. "They make a practice of finding out which of the passengers have diamonds, or silk, or satin, or other valuable articles that they hope to smuggle through, and to these they hint in the world. As soon as the vessel arrives the informers rush to a special agent with the information, and the would-be smuggler loses his or her goods as a result of betraying the talk of the tempter. There is not a trip made by one of the big steamships when this does not occur. An exception was noted the other day when the stewardess of one of the French line vessels was herself caught smuggling, and goods valued at $1,000 were taken from her."

Milliners and tailors do not hesitate to turn informers in order to get a rival out of the way. An exception was noted the other day when the stewardess of one of the French line vessels was herself caught smuggling, and goods valued at $1,000 were taken from her."

Many men are well dressed and pose as business or professional men who have been abroad on a vacation.

On the voyage from Liverpool one of them makes himself agreeable to the men on board, and at the steamship New York he makes himself agreeable to the men on board, and at the steamship New York he makes himself agreeable to the men on board.

"I always do it," he exclaims, confidently. "I never make a European trip without bringing back several hundred dollars' worth of goods free of duty."

Then he urges his friends to make the attempt also, and one or two at least always do so.

Of course they are caught, while the gentlemanly informers make the price of his passage and can comfortably spending money as the result of his work.

Such informers are well known to the custom house people, who designate them as "ocean bunco steers."

Not infrequently it is made by the steamship authorities to prevent the work of the informers, some of whom pick out a good steamer upon which to employ their talents, and practically live for years upon it.

A cure for leprosy has been found, says Mr. Clifford, the last European to visit Father Damien. It is guaiac oil, the product of a fir tree which grows plentifully in the Andean Islands.

It was discovered by Dr. Donaghy, and Mr. Clifford was assisted by Dr. Donald Stewart, who was then governor of the islands, and who has at the official medical report, that every single case in the place was cured by it. The leprosy was confined, and it was therefore impossible to entice a fourth man a day of rubbing guaiac oil over their bodies.

The taking of two months' medicine internally. In some of the cases the disease was of many years' standing, and the state to which it had reduced its victims was indescribably painful, yet after eight months' treatment were able to run and to use a heavy plow, and every symptom of leprosy had disappeared.

Father Damien tried it, but two failed.

Wedding Rings.

It marriage is not a failure there is a question as to the indifference regard in which the wedding ring is held. Recent years have seen a noticeable change in the jewelry of the bride and groom.

and the increasing preference for diamond rings which he wears or whistles softly, but none the less significantly, as he makes a note of the initials to be inscribed. Very young brides wear the yellow band, but in well-to-do circles the diamond ring is the rule.

Added to the fact that the bride and groom are more likely to be married in the future, and the bride and groom are more likely to be married in the future, and the bride and groom are more likely to be married in the future.

Among older wives the ring is discarded altogether, and if you inquire about it the matron will calmly tell you it's such an unfashionable piece of jewelry to be obliged to wear and as a result the young lady daughters in no family are married with a ring.

Not one of the married with a ring. Not one of the married with a ring. Not one of the married with a ring.

A bride of a month ago was married with a wedding ring, composed of two circles, each having a diamond set in a precious jewel in its head. To show the low degree of enthusiasm for the time honored symbol of conjugal love at the last evening club dinner party given in the city.

There were the plain gold band, there were the diamonds, circles of pearls and mother-of-pearl by the quart, but the single ring displayed the simple yellow loop.

Chaste widows find the band, particularly obnoxious, and those gay and festive wives who have a few means of freedom than is wholesome for their husbands. As the result and in social gatherings one hears frequent outbursts from the young and innocent society men who protest against what they consider misplacement of the only badge that distinguishes a married woman from a spinster.

Very Old Road. A German who visited Pompeii writes as follows concerning the bread discovered there: "In one room are shown well closed glass cases, side by side with some precious objects, the oldest bread which was found in an oven of which the bread is round and has four cuts, and may have weighed when fresh about three or four pounds. To this day bread like this is baked in Naples and the neighborhood, a proof of how little advanced the baker's trade is in the south of Italy."

Our guide assured us that diamonds of the kind had been sold to foreign museums for enormous sums of money, and that before he would not be sold at all, no matter what was the price offered. Having seen this bread, I was curious to see the oven in which it had been baked and found, after a most interesting tour through the ruins of Pompeii, the oven of the Propitius baker.

"The houses are not built like ours of today. They are without windows, with an entrance into the interior, which is a square, open hall, or rather yard, which in the better class of houses, contains a garden and a fountain. In this yard the doors from all the rooms open. The streets serve as drains for the houses as well as the streets. Great blocks of stone serve as stepping stones to pass from one side of the street to the other."

Within the house was also placed the bathing room, and the oven was built in the kitchen, which was built in good preservation. This oven was very much like those which we see in country bakeries of the present day. In the same room, a little away from the oven, stood also a corn mill, of dark gray stone, shifter to our old sugar mill. There was a hole in the wall, through which flour was blown through, which slaves or domestics had to turn around.

The Best Dressed Men in London. Although the London men about town are the best dressed in the world, they are little or no admirers of the male beauty here. It is one of the most difficult things imaginable to find out the Englishmen who are considered to be on the summit of fashion in the matter of clothes, unless one knows them personally.

Portraits of society women of all kinds and of all ages, and of all kinds of fashion here, but never a portrait of a society man unless he happens to hold some public office of prominence. English society has a great deal of sameness about it.

To begin with, the well-to-do must have a title or be a military man, and as all titled Englishmen have something to do with the army, the militia, the yeomanry or the volunteers, all society of the first rank are military officers of some kind. Before a young titled Englishman can be qualified to become a credit to his family, he must have been to the front and have held a commission in the militia. It doesn't matter how long he holds the commission. Then, again, the personal appearance of the most talented men of this type is apt to be wanting in variety. They run about six feet in height, have broad shoulders, deep chests and comparatively small waists, for which three inches of the waist are not particularly responsible. They, almost without exception, shave all their face but the upper lip, where they grow as big and curly a mustache as possible. Usually they are in civilian dress.

One of the earliest of the famous buccanniers was Capt. Cromwell, who had been a common sailor in New England. In 1610 he was in command of three fast sailing brigantines, filled with armed men, and was driven into the harbor of New Plymouth by a storm. Cromwell and his men were taken to the harbor, and while in this city they captured Governor Winslow with an elegant ship, and captured in one of his prizes.
